

Vets News - July 2025

Belated Congratulations

A huge well done to Kiama vets member Jackie Wheeler who took out the Women's NSWVGA Shield at the Forbes Week of Golf held in May.

Trevor Bell Memorial Shield

The Links Shell Cove has forged ahead on the leaderboard after the 3rd round which was played on July 14. They lead by 17 points from Wollongong. Kiama has slipped to 3rd place, a further 5 points back. Scott Clare provided the best score for Kiama and came 3rd overall. It is interesting to note that the 1st three places on the leaderboard involve teams that have had home games. The 4th round game is set down for play on August 14 at Jamberoo.

Vale Ian Bloodworth

It is with much sadness that the KGC Vets Committee advises of the recent passing of Ian Bloodworth.

Ian was a member of the KGC Vets Committee and his input and enthusiasm will be missed. RIP Ian.

Kiama Seaside Veterans' Tournament

Sixty five (65) players have so far entered for this tournament scheduled for November. Due to a switch to a shot gun start, entries have been capped at 120. It is highly recommended that golfers who intend to play in this tournament, apply to enter a.s.a.p. to avoid missing out.

Registration can be done on the NSWVGA website.

NSWVGA Matchplay Championships

This event is scheduled for play in December at Shoalhaven Heads Golf Club in the week following the Kiama Seaside Veterans' Tournament. At the moment, you can register your intention to participate by printing off the entry form, completing your details, scanning, and sending the completed form to the email address listed on the entry form. Some entry forms have been printed for you and are available on the KGC Vets Notice Board. More details are to be found on the Program 2025 page on the NSWVGA website.
